

Tiny Notes...

Who doesn't get excited about getting a letter or a note from someone they love?!? This began when the craft store had cute card stock gift tags on sale. Once we were home, and coming up with ideas as to how to use them, we discovered that if you folded the tag into thirds it looked like a tiny envelope. So we hunted down some cute stickers to use to seal the letters shut, and we began to write little positive notes back and forth. She loved them because they were miniature, and she felt proud to be doing something kind for me, and she loved receiving the notes I wrote her. They were so tiny we decided it was best to leave them on each others pillow . They did have some blank tags and a few rows over some tiny super hero stickers — I may go back for those next once we've run out of these. :) Have fun and enjoy!
