SUMMER READING

Regular English I 2024-2025

Welcome to Regular English I! This class will focus largely on a reading and writing analysis, which examines the choices authors use to influence their audience and achieve their purpose.

Thus, with an eye toward eventual rhetorical analysis, students enrolled in English I are expected to choose ONE personal narrative short story from the list below to read and study over the summer.

Please know that you are strongly encouraged to obtain your own copy of the short story to more easily annotate and interact with it as you read. However, if you prefer, you may create a digital google doc for your annotations while reading an on-line copy of your chosen short story from the Harlan Summer Reading List.

Annotation can be especially helpful when studying a piece. It involves marking aspects of the text that you find important or influential, and making comments for yourself in order to remember why you marked what you did. Although your annotations will not be graded, they will help you prepare to perform a, in depth analysis over your chosen personal narrative short story, as it is easier to relocate choices the author uses when you can simply read back over your comments to yourself, rather than re-reading the entire short story. Your reading assignment can be found HERE.

Reading your chosen book from this list will prepare you for:

- identifying key ideas in a text through examining the details an author uses
- analyzing the author's purpose, audience, and message when reading a variety of narrative texts
- analyzing specific rhetorical choices (tools/strategies/techniques) the author uses
- responding to your reading in a variety of ways to include evidence-based discussions and written responses
- experimenting with incorporating an anecdote in informative writing

Short Story Choices

(please select only ONE short story)

Recognizing that Regular English I is a high school course and our reading features mature content, be sure to personally research the choices below before selecting the one you'd prefer to read and study.
